

From:
Tim Johnson, Director
NC Center for Geographic Information and Analysis
March 9, 2010

I am pleased to announce that Jeff Brown has accepted the position of Coordination Program Manager at CGIA. Jeff will be responsible for supporting me and the Geographic Information Coordinating Council (GICC) as the GIS community moves forward to implement the recommendations of the GIS Study and the subsequent Implementation Plan, as directed by the General Assembly.

Jeff brings an excellent knowledge of state government departments and programs to the position and an appreciation for the role of the many stakeholders including federal, state and local governments in achieving success in GIS statewide. He is currently a member of the CGIA staff and has worked for the agency for 14 years as a project manager and leader in GIS project implementations. He previously worked in the NC Office of State Planning for several years focused on strategic planning and performance based budgeting. He served as staff support to the NC Economic Development Board and the NC Progress Board during that time.

Jeff's communication, collaboration, and outreach skills and experiences will be invaluable in the Coordination Program Manager position. Please join me in welcoming him into his new role.